

Kazumasa ENAMI

Kazumasa ENAMI graduated from the Tokyo Institute of Technology, and joined NHK in 1971.

From 1974, he worked for NHK Science and Technical Research Laboratories. He has been engaged in research on video signal processing, parallel computing, and content production technology. He was appointed Director-General of NHK Science and Technical Research Laboratories in 2004. He is now working for National Institute of Information and Communications Technologies(NICT). At NICT, he is conducting his research project on ultra realistic communication system including 3D-TV. He is also Director-General of Keihanna Research Laboratories of NICT located in Kyoto.

Dr.Engineering

Chairman of Planning and Promotion Committee of Ultra-Realistic Communications Forum

IEEE Fellow

Former Vice-president of ITE (The Institute of Image Information and Television Engineers)

Vice-president of Virtual Reality Society of Japan